Soyul Park, 19th Graduating Class of Heavenly Dream School
Senior Nursing Student at Shinhan University

Heavenly Dream School: my spiritual home

It's been four years already since I graduated from Heavenly Dream School. For me, this school was a place that led me back to God and helped me find my way in life again. Through my time there, my relationship with the Lord was restored, and I gained the values that guide how I live my life today.

I'm currently a nursing student in my final semester. Even though my days are packed with constant clinical practice and studies, I'm trying my best not to miss out on my time with God. The more exhausted and overwhelmed I feel, the more I strive to stand before Him, because He is truly the center of my life.

When I was considering my career path, I chose nursing because I wanted to do more than just help the sick. I wanted to share God's love and peace with those in the midst of suffering. My goal is to live as a channel for the Gospel of Jesus, our True Healer, by empathizing with the pain of those who are weary and brokenhearted. Because I believe this path is the calling God has given me, I am embracing this current journey with a heart of gratitude.

My church: praying for the Gospel to reach the land of North Korea

Joining the church through HDS was a major turning point in my life. I remember my first Friday night service; there was a special offering and a time of prayer for North Korean youth. Seeing the congregation praying so earnestly for North Korea with tears in their eyes made me realize that I had never truly prayed for my own homeland like that. I felt a deep sense of conviction, but also an overwhelming wave of gratitude. That moment became the catalyst for me to finally commit myself to prayer.

I am realizing more clearly than ever that God sent me to this land first not just to know the Gospel, but to share it. The world says that unification is difficult, but I believe unification will be achieved through the Gospel. Just as God called us out of the darkness and led us into the light, I am certain that His light will surely shine upon the land of North Korea. I want to live my life as a nurse who shares the Gospel and as someone who is truly prepared for that day.

Whenever I go through difficult moments, I hold onto the hymn "By Gentle Powers". It reminds me that even in times when I cannot see the way forward, God is leading me with His goodness. I want to continue walking faithfully in the place where I've been called, following the life He has entrusted to me.
